FATALITY NEAR WELLESLEY

Thomas Huber and William Attig Instantly Killed by Sudden Explosion.

A terrible double fatality occurred just before noon Monday on the 9th concession of Wellesley township about 8 miles from Wellesley village. Thomas Huber on whose premises the accident occurred and William Attig, of Newton, were instantly killed, the former being blown to pieces.

The shocking accident occurred at the late Mr. Huber's cider mill on the ninth line of Wellesley, where the two unfortunate men were putting up an apple butter plant in connection with the mill.

Suddenly and without the slightest warning, the boiler burst, smashing the building and instantly killing both Mr. Huber and Mr. Attig.

Mr. Huber's body was blown a long distance, the clothes being literally torn off him, and he was badly mangled. Mr. Attig's death was also instantaneous though it is understood he was not so badly smashed.

Mr. Huber, who was the proprietor of the mill, was a young man of about 30 years of age and leaves a wife and two small children. He was the popular blacksmith as well as mill owner of that section and was very well and favorably known throughout the township.

Mr. Attig, whose home was in Newton, has been engaged in moving buildings and allied forms of work and was employed at the Huber cider mill erecting an apple butter plant when the terrible accident occurred.

The whole community is depressed over the shocking fatality and great sympathy is expressed for the bereaved families.

What caused the explosion is a mystery as it came with awful suddenness, leaving death and destruction in its wake.

DETAILS OF EXPLOSION

Illustration Near Linwood is Graphically Described

The illustration gives further details of the terrible boiler explosion at Linwood on Monday last in which William Attig and Daumen Huber were killed. It states:

The boiler had been filled with water last week and on Monday morning Mr. Attig decided to make the first test of the machinery to see that everything was in running order before opening out for business on Wednesday, as had been announced. Mr. Huber, who followed the trade of blacksmith and woodworker, was employed along with Mr. Geo. Duench in the blacksmith shop. Towards noon he went to announce to Attig that dinner was ready, and while in the engine and boiler room the explosion took place with such awful consequences to life and property. For miles around the report could be heard, and many wondered as to the cause. Duench, the only other man near at hand, rushed out of the shop, and Mrs. Huber out of the house across the way. The sight that met their eyes almost staggered them for the time being. The building, that had been standing a few minutes before, was now a complete wreck, with timbers shivered to atoms, and the stone walls levelled to the ground, bricks strewn around for hundreds of yards, heavy sections of the boiler lying north, south, east and west, one piece seven feet wide by thirteen feet in length, and weighing over three hundred pounds, having been carried a distance of nearly forty rods. The smokestack lay across the road, dinged and bent. Flues were scattered about in every direction. The fields adjoining were literally covered with matchwood, and the whole building, with the single exception of the heavy cider press, an entire and absolute wreck, showing the immense force of the explosion.

Search for the unfortunate men amidst the mass of the ruins revealed the body of Mr. Attig about forty feet east of the building, it having been blown through the wall by the terrible impact. His head was crushed in around the left eye, the left arm torn to shreds from shoulder to elbow, while the right leg, from the knee to the ankle, was smashed into pulp. The head and shoulders were also badly scalded.

The body of Huber was blown a distance of about eighty feet, and was found across the road, east of the building, where it had struck a tree, glancing off, knocking down the rail fence in close proximity. Not a vestige of clothing remained on it, except the collar of the shirt and a piece of the sleeve; pants, boots and socks were found on the road—one of the shoes having the sole torn off. The only apparent wound was a deep cut in the back of the head, but the body and face were badly scalded. The bodies were taken into the blacksmith shop and Associate Coroner McEachern of Linwood, summoned, who decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Mr. Huber was forty-seven years of age, and leaves a sorrowing widow to mourn his loss. He was a man held in very high esteem, and his unfortunate death has cast a gloom over the entire community.

Mr. Attig was in his fifty-third year, and leaves to mourn his loss a widow and family of two sons and two daughters, namely, William, of Haileybury, Charles of New Hamburg, Mrs. James McConachy of Newton, and Lizzie at home. Mr. Attig was too well known in the vicinity to need any comment at our hands, he having for the past thirty years, been engaged in saw-milling and general contracting.

were present notwithstanding the stormy condition of the weather.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. H. Sanderson after which Rev. Jos. Janes, pastor of the church, welcomed the delegates to Berlin and the convention. The President, Mr. W. Mullet, of Galt, responded in a suitable manner and gave a brief review of the work that has been accomplished by the Association during the year and referred to the progress of the Sunday School movement throughout the Province.

After the routine business Rev. W.
J. Yager, of New Hamburg, delivered a logical and practical address on "Habit." He referred in his opening remarks to the many Scriptural illustrations of what has been accomplished by prominent men who had acquired habits in their youth, speaking particularly of David and Daniel, the former being expert with the slings while the latter was a praying man at home and in a foreign country. He spoke of the universality of the fact of habit being noticeable in all lines of life. Habit holds sway over the body, the mind and the nervous system. Habit simplifies movement and also diminishes constant attention. Spiritually, he maintained, that if a person acquires a habit to think true thoughts he will love pure things. "If we think right we will live right," was the speaker's sentiment. Righteousness is the result of habit. Mr. Yager spoke at considerable length regarding the defence and overcoming power of habit. He contended that if parents would train their children to attend to the devotional duties they would not depart from them when they grow into manhood and womanhood.
It was the repetition of an act or a thought that creates a habit. He referred to the cigarette habit. It was a small article still it leads the young boy to become a habitual

DEATH OF MRS. A. BOOMER

The death took place Monday at 10:30 o'clock of an aged and highly esteemed resident in the person of Mrs. Jane McClelland, relict of the late Alfred Boomer, at the residence, 104 Lancaster street. The deceased suffered a paralytic stroke a year ago last March and has been in poor health ever since. About four weeks ago she suffered a second stroke and since then very little hope was held out for her recovery. She had been unconscious during the last week, and her passing Monday was exceedingly quiet and painless. She was surrounded by all the members of her family.

The deceased was born in Toronto Township, about 77 years ago and shortly after her marriage to the late Alfred Boomer they moved to Il-wood, where they resided for many years. The deceased's husband died about six years ago after which she moved to Berlin and resided with her daughter, Miss Boomer on Lancaster street. She was of a retiring disposition but always took an active interest in the welfare of the various organizations with which she was connected during her lifelong membership in the Methodist church.
She was a devoted Christian woman, kindly and thoughtful and a loving mother. Her demise will be a severe blow to the family of five daughters who survive, viz., Miss Clara at home, Mrs. J. C. Rutherford, Toronto, Mrs. M. J. Grimm, Hespeler, Mrs. J. B. Musselman, Capper, Sask., and Miss Edith, of Barrie. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon from the residence to the Haystack cemetery.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A Great Sufferer From Indigestion Tells How She Was Cured.

Stomach trouble is a general name for all forms of indigestion, whether great pain after eating, belching of wind, heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, or the sharp pains that often make you think you have heart trouble. There are two things noticeable in indigestion. One is that doctors always find indigestion

SURPRISE FOR MISS ELMEDIA SATTLE

A very pleasant evening was spent on the evening of the 10th, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Sattler, Ellen St., Berlin, when Elmédia was surprised by a score of her friends with a kitchen shower. Miss Sattler was presented with many useful gifts, which will serve her purpose in many respects. There was a very pleasant evening spent in music and games, after which a dainty lunch was served. The parting hour, however, came to hand too soon and the happy crowd parted, wishing their friend every success in her new undertaking.

GRETA LANG PASSES AWAY

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Lang will have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the sad death of their eleven year old daughter, Greta, who passed away at their home, 22 Irvin St., at seven o'clock Monday.
Three weeks ago the little girl contracted a severe type of typhoid fever and in spite of the best medical attention and careful nursing she passed quietly away. Greta was the only daughter of the bereaved parents and their loss will be a severe blow. She was a bright and intelligent girl, of a lovable disposition, and her untimely demise will be keenly felt by her associates in the Central School and also at the King Street Baptist Sunday school. The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon.
