1063 Doering Street, Wellesley	Reiner/Schmehl House	1867	Cultural Heritage Value The Reiner House was built by John George Reiner, a prominent Wellesley citizen who became known as the “Builder of Wellesley.” He owned the woollen mill, a flour mill, a general store, a sawmill and a stove and heating plant. Reiner was also involved in the Wellesley and North Easthope Agricultural Society, buying the site and constructing the building that housed the society. The Reiner House has distinctive Georgian elements, while being influenced by both the Classical Revival and Victorian styles. The overall structure is Georgian, but the entrance, with its sidelight and transom, the fluted pilasters and the windows with their small pediments are all distinctly Classical. The protruding bay window on the east elevation is a nod to Victorian style of the time. Character defining elements that contribute to the heritage value of the Reiner House include its: <ul data-bbox="772 743 1816 987" style="list-style-type: none"> - entrance with sidelights and transom - fluted pilasters - brick section of the home which features projecting architrave, keystones and lozenge shaped panel insets - windows with small pediments - protruding bay windows - decorative brickwork Designated Features All exterior facades are designated for architectural and historical value. Date of Designation – March 7, 1984	32-84
