NEW PRUSSIA.

The Debating Society of New Prussia met last Friday evening in the school house and the subject discussed was: Resolved, that fire does more harm than water. The audience was very large, several attending from Wellesley and other points. The supporters of the affirmative were Messrs. Koch, Hammer and Krampin; those for the negative were Messrs. Otto, Kling and Baltzer. The judges were Miss Mautho and Messrs. Ratz and Hornby who finally decided, six to eight points, in favor of the negative. The subject was very wide and the material worked into arguments which were advanced by either side supplied abundant mental food for the imagination, embracing as it did destruction by fire of great cities in ancient and modern times, disastrous volcanic eruptions, fire as a vicer destroyer, its horrible work in war, on the one hand; and the great deluge, shipwrecks, floods and drowning accidents, on the other. The President wisely took advantage of the large audience to call on several of the extemporaneous speakers. Short pithy addresses were kindly given by Misses Mautho and Cleghorn, and Messrs. Ratz, Barth, Feinb and Ottmann. We are pleased that our Wellesley friends take such a keen interest in the work of our Society, and hope it will continue. They are always welcome. The Subject of our next debate, which will be held on March 11th, is "Resolved that wood is of more value to mankind than coal."

TREATMENT FOR SMUT IN OATS.

Many enquiries have been made by Ontario farmers regarding the treatment of smut in oats. Experiments have been conducted at the College in order to ascertain the most effectual remedies which can be used for this pest. Two varieties of oats were selected in the spring of 1902, and again in the spring of 1903, and uniform samples from each variety were submitted to special treatments with the object of killing the spores of smut adhering to the grain. The various treatments were as follows:

- (1) Immersion in hot water: For this treatment, the grain was placed in a bag, which was then immersed in water at about 115 degrees F. Soon afterwards it was placed in water which was kept at a temperature between 130 degrees and 135 degrees F. The grain was occasionally stirred and was allowed to remain in the water for a period of fifteen minutes. It was then spread out on a clean floor to dry, where it was stirred occasionally.
- (2) Immersion in Bluestone Solution for five minutes: For No. 2 treatment, a strong solution was made by dissolving one pound of Copper Sulphate (Bluestone) in a gallon of water, and then immersing the oats in the solution for a period of five minutes.
- (3) Immersion in a Bluestone Solution for twelve hours: In this treatment, the bluestone solution was made by dissolving one pound of bluestone in 25 gallons of water, and the oats were immersed in this solution for a period of twelve hours.
- (4) Sprinkling with Bluestone Solution: This solution was made by dissolving one pound of bluestone in 10 gallons of water, which was used for sprinkling over the oats until they were thoroughly moistened after being carefully stirred.
- (5) Immersion in Potassium Sulphide Solution: The Potassium sulphide treatment consisted in soaking the seed for two hours in a solution made by dissolving 8 lbs. of potassium sulphide in 50 gallons of water.

(6) Immersion in diluted formalin (Formaldehyde): The solution of formalin used for the immersion process was made by pouring one-half pint of the formalin into 21 gallons of water, and the seed oats were immersed in the solution for 20 minutes.

(7) Sprinkling with diluted formalin: One-half pint of formalin was poured into 5 gallons of water. The oats were then sprinkled with this solution and carefully stirred until the grain was thoroughly moistened.

(8) Untreated: One sample of oats of each variety was left untreated in order that the influence of the various treatments might be observed.

Eight lots of oats of each variety were, therefore, used for this experiment. After the treatments had been completed a few hours, the oats were carefully sown on separate plots. When the oats were coming into head, they were examined frequently and all smutted heads were removed and carefully counted from day to day. The following table gives the total percentage of smutted heads of oats from each treatment:

TREATMENTS.	PERCENTAGE of crop smutted.
1. Hot water.....	0
2. Bluestone (5 min).....	1.3
3. Bluestone, 12 hrs.....	3
4. Bluestone, sprinkled.....	1.4
5. Potassium Sulph, 2 hrs.....	1.7
6. Formalin, 20 min.....	0
7. Formalin, sprkled.....	0
8. Untreated.....	4.7

The smut in oats very frequently causes a great reduction in the yield of grain. The treatments with hot water, formalin, and immersion in bluestone for 12 hours have given the best results at the College. The formalin is a clear liquid, which can be obtained from almost any drug store. The treatment with formalin is easily performed, comparatively cheap, and very effectual. Farmers would do well to treat their oats before sowing in the spring.

THE MAIL AND EMPIRE'S WAR NEWS.

People who wish to be posted on the progress of the Japanese-Russian War should subscribe for the Toronto Mail and Empire, which will cover the field with the same thoroughness that witnessed its handling of the Spanish-American and Boer Wars. Not only will the Mail and Empire be served by the Laffan Bureau and the Associated Press, but it will publish the cables of the special correspondents of the London Times, London Daily Mail and the Paris edition of the New York Herald.

THE GLOBE'S WAR NEWS.

From Special Correspondents in the Field.

The Russo-Japan conflict has commenced in earnest, and that part of the world is now the centre of interest.

In order that our readers may be kept in the closest touch with the situation we have made special arrangements whereby they can have The Weekly Globe for the year 1904 on specially liberal terms.

The Globe, with its usual enterprise, has made arrangements with the London Times whereby it is able to publish simultaneously the reports sent direct from the scene of action. The Times, London, England, has established its reputation as being the greatest and most reliable news-gatherer in the world, and our readers can have full benefit of its excellent staff of correspondents by reading The Daily or The Weekly Globe.

The Globe has the exclusive control of this service in Canada, and these reports will not appear in their original form in any other Canadian publication.

A summarized report with every item of interest will be especially written for The Weekly Globe, enabling readers to gain a thorough knowledge of the situation without the trouble of reading columns of contradictory and confusing reports.

The Weekly Globe with its illustrated section and many interesting features, is now one of the cleanest and brightest newspapers in America, and we are pleased to be able to announce that the arrangement just completed will enable subscribers to secure it for this year at a special price.

Sugar of Milk.

Sugar of milk, which is made from whey, is itself has no medicinal qualities. Aside from its uses as a food for the young, it is known to the medical profession principally as a vehicle. Heteropathic physicians naturally use it more than the allopaths, but both allopaths and homeopaths nowadays are giving medicine in tablet form to a great extent, and the tablets are in most cases made palatable by sugar of milk.

Sugar of milk also forms the bulk of triturations, more commonly known to patients as powders. Only a small per cent of the average powder is medicine. By means of mixing sugar of milk the taking of moderate doses of powerful drugs is made possible. In the globule or pill form this is also true.

A Dig at the Satiists.

The instinct of mankind against satire is really a very sound instinct. Satire is always dishonest, for it is always the expression of hatred for a thing hopelessly coveted. Who satirizes humanity? None but he who, not having the common human advantages, is obsessed with admiration of them. Who satirizes plutocracy? The pauper, who is warmed by the poison of wealth. Who satirizes aristocracy? The man who wishes he had been born an aristocrat. Thackeray wished that, and the Marquis of Farnborough was one of the natural outcomes of his wish—Max Beerholm in Saturday Review.

How to Advertise.

The householder in glancing through his morning paper has his attention caught by the more attractive advertisements. Advertising is an essential factor in modern business methods, and to advertise wisely the business man must understand the workings of the minds of his customers and must know how to influence them effectively—he must know how to apply psychology to advertising.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Japs and Russians are still fighting away at each other. The news sent out is so conflicting that one hardly knows which to believe, but it is evident the little Japs are still getting the best of it. There seems to be but little left of the Russian fleet except the few vessels bottled up at Port Arthur and those which left Vladivostok for parts unknown. On land the islanders have also been very aggressive, nearly destroying the great railway and pressing the Russian troops very hard. It seems incredible, however, that the small Japanese nation will finally whip their quibersome and powerful opponent.

The North Section of North East hop votes on the electric railway bonuses by-law next Tuesday. This is the last of the bonuses asked by the Company to build as far as Wellesley, and with proper effort there is every reason to believe it will carry. If the scheme to build to Stratford later on matures North Easthope will, by carrying this $2,000 by-law, get out of it easily, for they scarcely expect to be asked for a second assistance and may thus escape a much higher bonus if the road is to be continued right through their township on its way to Stratford. To pay the annual tax created by the by-law to be voted on next Tuesday will only require the small sum of about 29 cents per $1,000 of assessment. The advantage of having a shipping point so near by, and the benefit of a competition caused by opposition to the G. T. R., makes it unlikely that many will oppose the by-law.

There seems much anxiety to fear the heavy snow fall this winter will result in disastrous freshets in the spring. Isn't that borrowing trouble? Don't forget that there is but little frost in the ground so that soaking may easily take care of one half the snow. Then there have already been two or three pretty heavy thaws which have left the snow very loose so that there is not really such a solid mass of it to melt as appearances would indicate to the unthoughtful. There is one sure thing; if we are to have unusual spring floods, we won't get them before spring. It may just be a little soon to worry over it.

The versatile ex-mayor H. T. Butler, of Stratford, is making a happy hit these days by a series of reminiscences of the Classic City which are being published in the Stratford Herald. Those who had the notion that H. T. could not write, except with caustic ink, are getting their minds disabused in these last jolly letters of his.

Provincial Legislature has now got past the speech from the throne and the budget debate. After working through some private bills and tinkering with some of the present laws nothing remains but to raise the Members' salaries, rush a dozen or two important money grants through without discussion and adjourn.

On Friday, March 11th Milverton votes on a $2,000 bonus by-law, and Mornington on the same date will vote on a $5,000 bonus to aid the Guelph Junction railway in crossing that township.

The "Ocean Signal" is the best 5c. cigar of all. They all sell it.

FORMOS SHIP ENGINEER.

Mr. L. Tomlinson, Who Estimates He Has Traveled About 2,125,000 Miles.

Mr. L. Tomlinson, one of the most famous of ship engineers, completed his last voyage as chief engineer of the Cunard Line's Campania on her arrival in Liverpool recently, returning on a liberal pension after fifty-one and a half years' service with that company. As the vessel neared port on Saturday morning the numerous passengers met, and formally presented him with his portrait, an illuminated address, and a purse of gold. One of the many feats which he performed at sea, just eleven years ago, stands out as remarkable. In the middle of December the Umbria was fighting her way through a great gale, about 800 miles out from New York, when her trust shaft to which the propeller is attached snapped. On land no news could be obtained of the vessel, and Christmas passed without any tidings. Both in England and America the greatest concern was felt, and the vessel was given up as lost. But just before New Year's Day the Umbria very slowly and very gingerly steamed into the Canal wharf at Liverpool. The old shaft could not be replaced, and the chief engineer had to piece up the great steel rod, on which practically the whole force of the engine is thrown. For eighty hours the engineer and his staff toiled, and at last with feelings of intense anxiety the engine was started. The shaft stood the test, and not a penny had to be paid in salvage. Mr. Tomlinson has served as engineer on fourteen of the company's ships, and estimates that he has traveled about 2,125,000 miles.

A Veteran Journalist.

Mr. Mason Jackson of The Illustrated London News, died the other day after forty-two years' service. Mr. Jackson's artistic experience dated back to the days of the Hobbeline of 1837. Some years ago in an interview with The Sketch, Mr. Jackson told the story as follows: "It came about in a curious way," said Mr. Jackson, in answer to a question as to how he first became connected with the pictorial press. "In 1837 a rebellion broke out in Canada, the interest of which chiefly centered in Navy Island, in the Niagara River. There were no regular illustrated journals then, though The Weekly Chronicle and The Observer used occasionally to blossom out with a woodcut. Mr. Wyld, the map publisher, called to see my brother, John, and said that a block of Navy Island was urgently wanted for The Morning Chronicle. In my brother's absence I successfully undertook the work. The next incident was the fire at the Royal Exchange in 1838. A rough sketch of it was given me to execute for The Weekly Chronicle in great hurry. I well remember working on it through a winter's night, the weather being as cold as the theme of my engraving was warm. Four days later my picture appeared in the paper. When the Queen's Coronation furnished the subject of a picture in The Weekly Chronicle I helped to engrave the Coronation procession. Thus as a young man I became equipped for the duties which ultimately came to me in the office of The Illustrated London News."

Mr. Jackson had been for many years a director of The Illustrated London News. He is the author of "The Pictorial Press; Its Origin and Progress."

The Oldest London Kitchens.

Perhaps the oldest relic in London of a mediaeval kitchen is at Westminster Abbey, though little remains to indicate it save the rubble flooring, the battery hatch, and an adjoining cellar, now the handsome dining hall of Canon Wilberforce. The monk who acted as kitchen or refectory had a responsibility as great as any he might or should have in these days. For among his fellow monks, to say nothing of the pensioners, were cries as keen as any among the grand-famous diners of to-day. Yet the Abbey kitchen was scarcely more elaborate than any one of those which linger on in the remote cottages of the rough Cornish coast or on the Yorkshire moors, where the entire cooking of the family is done on a flat hearth, with no other fuel than turf, or peat or twigs. The "broth-pot" hangs from a crane or stands on a tripod, and is most accommodating in its uses. Would you make bread? Lay the dough on a clean iron plate and invert the broth pot over it; then heap up all round it and lighted turf or wood.—Windsor Magazine.

Waltham Abbey.

Waltham Abbey, England, which has fallen into the hands of the "restorer," is associated with the memory of King Harold. It was founded by that monarch, whose tomb stood for many centuries on a site several yards beyond the east end of the present church. William the Conqueror showed little favor to the monastery. He robbed it of vestments, plate, and jewels, though, curiously enough, he left the monks in possession of their large estates. Among former curates of Waltham Abbey was Thomas Fuller, who has left an interesting "History" of his old church, which, by an odd coincidence, he compiled from a chronicle which bore the name of "Hort. Fuller," the last abbot of Waltham before the Reformation.

St. John's (Gospel's) Resurrection.—When the Duke of Wellington was in India he "discovered" the sandal who afterward became Sir Colin Campbell. That dashing warrior was in the commissariat service and had volunteered for an assault on a hill fort. The duke saw a little round man up a ladder, and, receiving a pike thrust at the top, roll down like a ball to the bottom. He was, however, up again in an instant, and running up like a squirrel, was the first or among the first in the place. The duke laughed, inquired about him, and procured him a commission.

Papa's Joke.

"I think it is so silly to see a baby biting his toes," remarked the young mother. "Well, I don't," spoke up the young father. "It shows that he is already learning how to be thrifty." "Thrifty?" "Yes; isn't he making both ends meet?"

First After Dinner Speech.

"I wonder who made the first after dinner speech?" asked the philosopher. "Adam," replied the wise guy promptly. "As soon as he got through with the core of that apple he said, 'The woman tempted me, didn't she?'"

In the Depths.

"He's trying to get a reputation as the worst pessimist in town." "He is the worst already." "Oh, no! he's only trying to be." "But he declares he knows it will just be his luck not to succeed."

Unhappy.

It is said that the only thing Scotch in a set of supplies is the sheepskin and tartan. The wool-clay or coons—comes from Africa or Jamaica, the ivory from Africa, the horn from Australia and the cane for the reed from Spain.

A Case of Heredity.

Cholly—Do you know, Mess Sharp, I believe some people inherit their stupidity. Miss Sharp—But, Mr. Sapehead, it is not proper to speak that way of your parents.

A Hot Finish.

"Speaking of a hot finish," remarked Uncle Allen Sparks, "there's the wasp."—Chicago Tribune.

THE PEPPERMINT STICK.

Some Words of Praise For the Candy of Our Children.

The old style stick candy has red stripes running around it in spiral form. The body of the stick is white. It is slightly flavored with peppermint. It is very sweet and wholesome. Good enough for a king! So cheap that the poorest may have it. Six sticks for 5 cents. Enough to last a family of six two days. Break a stick in two in the middle, eat half of it after dinner or after supper if preferred. That is enough candy for one day. It is good for children. Keep it in the house. Away up in the pantry where the children can't help themselves. After dinner is over take it down, break a stick in two and pass it around. The children will like it immensely. They will like it all the better for not being able to get too much of it. Never let them have all they want of it. A half stick is enough, although a whole stick might be allowed occasionally. All the fancy stuff put up in boxes that cost a dollar or more cannot equal the old fashioned stick candy. Six sticks of it contain more solid comfort and more nutrition than a wagon load of caramels and painted bonbons. It is the candy of our forefathers. Our grandmothers used to eat it. Accept no other. Be sure that you get the proper trademark—red stripes running spirally round the stick. Beware of substitutes.

A GREWSOME MESS.

Mrs. Wolfe's Recipe For a Good Water For Consumption.

Mrs. Wolfe, the mother of the great general, kept a comprehensive cookery book, still preserved at Squieries Court, Kent. One of her recipes was for "a good water for consumption." "Take a peck of garden snails," says the prescription, "wash them in beer, put them in an oven and let them stay till they've done crying; then with a knife and fork pick the green from them and beat the snails, shells and all, in a stone mortar; then take a quart of green earthworms, slice them through the middle and strain them with salt, then wash them and beat them, the pot being first put into the mill with two handfuls of angelica, a quart of rosemary flowers, then the snails and worms, then eryngo, bear's feet, red-dock roots, barberry brake, biloney, wormwood, of each two handfuls; one handful of rue-toric and one ounce of soft iron well dried and beaten; then pour in three gallons of milk; wash, in the morning, then put in the juices of crows well beaten, hartshorn grated; keep the still covered all night; this done, stir it not; distill it with a moderate fire. The patient must take two spoonfuls at a time."—London Chronicle.

Courage of a Horse.

Horses painfully contend on the race track for victory out of their own native courage and ambition—not under punishment, for, as a rule, the courageous horse will "win" or "shoot up," as the technical phrase is, when whipped or spurred at the finish of a race. In California some years ago a running horse broke one of the bones in a fore-leg near the close of a heat, perhaps seventy yards from the wire. He faltered for a moment and then, recovering himself by a mighty effort, struggled on and won the heat practically on three legs.—Country Life in America.

Dr. Bartlett and Margaret Fuller.

In regard to brilliant Margaret Fuller the following story is told by Senator Hoar in his reminiscences: "Old Dr. Bartlett, a very excellent and kind old doctor, though rather gruff in manner, could not abide her. About midnight one very dark, stormy night the doctor was called, out of bed by a sharp knocking at the door. He got up and put his head out of the window and said: 'Who's there? What do you want?' It was answered by 'Doctor, voice in the darkness below. Doctor, how much comfort can anybody take by mistake without its killing them?' to which the reply was, 'Who's taken it?' And the answer was, 'Margaret Fuller.' The doctor answered in great wrath: 'A peck!'"

Calling the Doctor.

It is a popular delusion that doctors are compelled to attend to any and every call made upon them. Nothing of the kind; but medical men very rarely refuse, although in many cases the chance of receiving a fee is remote. Sudden accidents or people suddenly taken ill (sometimes a man's leg) will make a kind bent onlooker run to the nearest doctor for assistance, quite oblivious as to who is responsible for payment. As a matter of fact, the one who calls the doctor is liable.—London Tit-Bits.

The Victoria Cross

For Valor In Ten Colors

Weekly Mail and Empire

For News 24 Pages

THE picture shows is one dear to every man, woman, boy and girl, on account of its meaning—"The Victoria Cross," given for conspicuous bravery. If only the soil of South Africa could voice the deeds performed upon it, how many Victoria Crosses would have been found to have been earned by Canada's sons! It is hard in the heat of action to notice every act of valor, and therefore only those which take place under the eye of superiors of sufficient rank can be noted.

The picture shows one of such deeds. Two troopers are closely pressed by the enemy. The horse of one is hit. Under the withering fire, the man whose mount is unharmed halts, and, risking everything, waits to get his comrade safely mounted behind him and carry him back to the Canadian lines. It is a desperate deed, and one often performed but seldom noticed. When, however, such an act is seen, the reward dear to soldiers' hearts above every other is the result.

This picture is from the brush of Mr. W. B. Wollen, an artist famed for his war pictures, one whose work appears in all the leading illustrated periodicals of the Empire. It is a forcible subject from the hand of a strong man.
