(This week's highlight.)

A friendly game of football was played between Heidelberg and St. Clements in the Heidelberg play grounds on Thursday last. The game was very closely contested and at intervals some remarkably fine combination was worked by both the teams, but unfortunately neither side were able to score.

After a few minutes rest they lined up again for the last half. The game was witnessed with the same interest by the crowd. The last three minutes before the call, Mr. Kochler, one of the Heidelberg hucks and Emil Moyer on the left wing of St. Clements had a tussle with the ball when Moyer had the misfortune of breaking his leg.

Fortunately Dr. More, of Hawksville was one of the spectators and it took him about an hour to set the leg again. Mr. Moyer is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances. We all wish him speedy recovery.

Mr. Wm. Hahn has rented the mill yards. He also put a good wire fence around it and rented a part of the grounds to the Football club.

Mr. Albert Steiss has started to make Linburger cheese again and in two or three weeks he will be ready to fill his orders. He is also making preparations for a new barn this summer.

Our farmers are getting the land ready for mangolds and potatoes. The ruin we recently had was badly needed.

DOERING'S CORNERS.

(Intended for last week.)

A very pleasant time was spent on April 26th at the residence of Mr. George Hammer when his daughter, Miss Tina, was united in marriage to Mr. Henry Knechtel of North Easthope. The party drove to Phillipsburg, where the nuptial ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Langholz, and then they all started for New Hamburg, returning home later in the day. About eighty guests gathered at the house where an excellent time was spent.

The young couple will take up their residence at the home of the groom who is a promising young farmer.

They have the heartiest congratulations of a wide circle of friends.

Mr. J. W. Otto has bought the Mallo farm, in North Easthope just west of here. The price paid was $4,000. It is understood that Mrs. Mallo intends moving to Stratford to live.

Farmers are working on the land and seeding. On May 1st last year all the seeding in this section was finished.

Miss Paulina Hartung, who has been ill for nearly a year past, is now able to be about again.

Mrs. Conrad Lanz is also improving in health.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Toronto Daily World deserves credit for the stand it has taken and the information it has given on the question of lower railway passenger rates.

The Wellesley extension electric railway seems to be behind a cloud just now owing to the failure of the town of Berlin and the labor party of that place to settle their dispute over the quashing of the by-law.

Meantime the prospects of the Gedrich extension are brightening. The "P.R." having decided to commence billing as soon as the right-of-way settlements can be made with the individuals who own the land over which the road is to pass.

The death of Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, removes one of the really great men of the day. Born a pauper he won his way to the fore front of 19th century history.

The Millerton Sun was recently imposed upon by an anonymous writer of a wedding notice. The editor made use of a private detective and last week the anonymous writer made a very humble apology over his own real name in the columns of the Sun.

LAND OF "EVANGELINE"

WORK OF A DESCENDANT OF ONE OF THE DEPORTED VICTIMS.

Edward Richard, the Acadian, who Recently Died at Battloford, N.W.T.— Remains of the Old Regime—"Evangeline" a Myth—The Disparities—A Christiana's Vindication—British Acted, However, in Good Faith.

Interest in the Acadians, made famous in song by Longfellow, is reported by the fact that one of the descendants of the victims of the deportation from the beautiful village of Grand Pre recently died at Battloford, in the person of Edouard Richard, the sheriff of the Northwest.

These papers are extremely interesting and highly valuable. They tell many of the romances of the old regime—for the history of France in the new world is truly a story of adventure and heroism, and in that respect is scarcely to be equaled by other relations of comparatively modern date.

But Richard's chief work was the defence of his ancestors, the Acadians, in respect of the matters for which they were removed from Nova Scotia. Longfellow, in "Evangeline," and Parkman, in his "Montcalm and Wolfe," have given versions of this tragedy.

To the ports along the Atlantic coast the Acadians were carried. Some managed to get to Quebec, and some, making their escape, found homes in Prince Edward Island, the Magdalen Islands, and even on the Coast of Labrador.

Some managed to get to Quebec, and some, making their escape, found homes in Prince Edward Island, the Magdalen Islands, and even on the Coast of Labrador. Their experience was much like that of the Loyalists who lost their property and were ordered out of the United States after the revolution.

resistance. Edouard Richard has endorsed many of the arguments of the Acadians, but he adds in his book "Missing Links of a Lost Chapter in American History," that the Acadians were removed from their lands by Gov. Lawrence, without authority from the British Government, and in the face of orders of a different character which reached Halifax just after the deportation had taken place.

The effort of Mr. Richard to vindicate his ancestors was at once chivalrous and natural. And it may be that his explanation will dovetail in with the British position. It is not improbable that the Acadians may have suspected or may have been urged to believe that they would be harshly treated as to their religion by the Bostonians, and that for this reason they were induced to regret the oath of allegiance and to take part in hostile movements.

PIANO TUNERS.

They Are Masters of Harmony, but Few Know Written Music.

The piano tuner was jangling the keys with one hand as he twisted and swung his little hammer at the pins with the other. Now and then he would strike a chord nonchalantly, but he never pretended to produce any succession of sounds that resembled a theme or phrase of music.

"Won't you play something for me?" asked the mistress of the household expectantly.

"I am afraid I can't gratify you, madam," was the response. "I can't play."

"The tuner is a master of harmony, or his ear is," said the man, "but few of us know written music. All a tuner has to have is an acute ear for notes and their harmony. With the pitch of a fork set at a certain point he has a basis to start from, and all he does is to give each string on the instrument its proper grade in the scale. It takes a mighty fine ear and much training of the sense of hearing, but that is all there is to it."

Gave Him Time. "Judge," wailed the prisoner, "can't you give me a little time to think this thing over?"

"Certainly," replied the magistrate. "Six months."

Anxious to Show It. "Hasn't young Hinks become suddenly religious? I see him at church every Sunday now."

"Yes. He's wearing his first silk hat."

THROUGH A BRIDGE.

Reiner Bros. & Co. have purchased an immense boiler from the Goldie & McCulloch Co G. It, to replace the one now in use in their factory here. A gang of three men went to Galt this week to haul it home and they were expected here early yesterday. But the ponderous boiler, weighing about six tons, proved a difficult customer. The load got stuck just east of Petersburg, where it remained all night. Yesterday it was advanced as far as Phillipsburg where it broke through the small bridge just at the foot of the hill and slid back into the creek so that it was nearly on end. It was apparently undamaged, however and workmen are at this writing raising it with jacks, so that it is expected to reach here sometime to-day.

TENNIS.

WELLESLEY ALWAYS WINS.

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent on the lawn here last Thursday afternoon when the ladies and gentlemen of New Hamburg tennis club, came up by invitation, to play a match with the locals. The courts are not in good condition yet and some of the players were out of form. This was especially noticeable in the play of Messrs Ran and Puddicombe who proved to be away behind their usual excellent form. The visitors played much better towards the close of the match, Robelski and Heick pulling out a neat victory after a very keen contest. Three doubles were played, the home team winning two of them.

Boore:

Messrs Kerr and Ed. Reiner (w) beat Messrs Ran and Puddicombe (N. N.) 6-0, 6-0. Dr. Glaister played for Mr. Reiner in the second set.

VISITING A VOLCANO.

The Party Was Simply Too Tired to Descend into the Crater.

We had meant to descend into the crater, but upon reaching the top concluded that we could see all that was to be seen from there. First one and then the other remarked that there was no need to make that attempt in view of the fact that there was nothing more to be seen down there anyway. Of course we were not afraid. No, no; just tired. One of the boys sat down on the edge and proceeded to shoot up the scenery with his kodak, while we two others made a tour of exploration along the summit. Confined to no opening in the wall yet, a sort of short running stream inside, we entered with something of the air of a chicken which, taking advantage of temporary quietness, takes its lead into a forbidden kitchen. If the presiding demon had made any explosive remarks, we should have walked straight back to the gate. Our native guide told us that it was all right, but he modestly refrained from forcing himself to the front, leaving that honor to the more aggressive Anglo-Saxon. The fact is we were all trying to get behind one another, with little or less success.—William Blanchard in National Geographic.

ASBESTOS.

It Was Used by the Ancients on Their Funeral Pyres.

Asbestos, which takes its name from a Greek word meaning incombustible, consists chiefly of silica, magnesia, alumina and oxide of iron. It was known to the ancients, who used it as a wrap to preserve the ashes of those whose bodies were cremated on the funeral pyre.

The modern demand for this valuable product has increased a supply from many quarters as far apart as the Alps and Canada. Its quality is determined by the length, strength and firmness of the fibers, which can be so manipulated as to resemble wool and to be woven into cloths, ropes and felted fabrics which resist any ordinary flames.

Asbestos woven cloth or felt it is a valuable protection against fire. It is largely used as packing for the pistons of steam engines and as a nonconducting covering for boilers or for fireproof cement. Combined with clay it forms the familiar fuel of our gas stoves, while in bricks, built in a furnace, it has proved of very special value in the manufacture of a safety paint and as an indestructible filter for acids or for electric filaments.—London Standard.

AN EARLY TIMEPIECE.

The Ring Dial, Which Was Used Before the Days of the Watch.

The ring dial, or sun ring, was used as a small sundial before the days of the watch. Modern imitations were made, we are told, "in basketfuls" by a Sheffield firm about 1780, and in much more recent times specimens about six inches in diameter have been on sale in London as "antique" toys which tell the solar time with great accuracy when the sun is high.

A writer in Notes and Queries, Jan. 23, 1881, describes a ring dial half an inch broad and two inches in diameter of Swedish make. To the right of its small handle a slit extends nearly a third of the diameter. A narrow band of brass runs along the center of the ring and covers the slit. This band is movable and has a hole through which the rays of the sun can fall. On each side of it letters for the months are inscribed, and within the ring opposite to these letters are figures for the hours.

By a proper adjustment of the brass band this ring clock could be properly set by the sun at suitable intervals perhaps once a month.

Curious Death Customs of Fiji.

The Fijians believe that in case a marriageable youth or maiden dies without having gone through with the elaborate nuptial knot, the ceremony of the islands that or her soul is doomed to wander about forever in an intermediate region between heaven and hell. When any one dies—man, woman or child—while the tooth is placed in the hand of the corpse, the missile to be thrown at the tree which serves as a guidepost to point out the road that leads to heaven and the one that leads to hell.

London and Athens.

On entering a London suburb the spirit of London greets you, takes possession of you and hurries you on in thought to meet the millions in its bosom. On entering the outskirts of Athens it is the spirit of the past which you encounter and which carries you back so far that the wearied mind turns and reposes in the present in keeping with the things ancient and indomitable in its vicinity.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Queer Sight in Holland.

One of the queerest sights which I saw in Europe was a row of wooden shoes outside the door of a Dutch farmhouse on Saturday morning. There were the big sized shoes of the farmer himself, the middle sized shoes of his good wren and several small sized shoes of the children, and all the

An Invitation.

An interesting collection of invitations to and from Benjamin Franklin during his visit to England is in the University of Pennsylvania Library. Among the letters to Franklin are some from the peerage for great and for little dinners, but perhaps the most interesting is one from a gentleman who described himself as "in lodgings" and unable to entertain Mr. Franklin at his home. He therefore proposed a visit to the Star and Garter, and then went on to say that he would order a dinner at a crown a head, evidently expecting Franklin to bear his share. There is no record of an acceptance.

A Cow Superstition.

According to Indo-European folklore the clouds of the heavens were nothing but cows, who were invested with the duties of a psychomp. At times these clouds descended to the earth and assumed their bovine garb, but their duty remained the same. Hence the superstition prevalent in many agricultural countries that a cow breaking into a garden foretells a death in the family. The psychomp was merely looking for a soul to escort to the hereafter.

All in One Pound of Coal.

If a pound of coal is subjected to a dry distillation and the products and residual treated chemically by the process of obtaining the well known coal tar colors, the pound thus treated will yield enough magneta to color 500 yards of flannel, vermilion for 2,500 yards, aurine for 120 yards and ultrine sufficient for 155 yards of red cloth.

Hardly.

"A nice husband, you are!" said madam in a passion. "You care less about me than about those pet animals of yours. Look what you did when your poodle, Azor, died." Husband (quietly)—Well, I had him stuffed. Wife (exasperated)—You wouldn't have gone to that expense for me—not you indeed!

Escaped Through a Technicality.
