THREE BIG VICTORIES.

WELLESLEY BOYS WIN

Two Games of Foot-Ball and One of Base Ball.

OTHER VICTORIA DAY SPORTS HERE

Tuesday was an ideal day for the celebration of Victoria Day. The weather was all that could be desired, bright, balmy and clear, just what was known in the old days as Queen's weather.

Business places in town were closed and the citizens prepared for a quiet holiday with fishing, tennis, and possibly a football game in the evening. But in the forenoon a baseball club arrived in the village from Waterloo, and although that game has not been played here for several years the locals gathered together a team and met the visitors after dinner in the presence of a couple of hundred spectators. The abilities of the home team surprised and delighted everybody except their opponents, who naturally expected a walkover. Our boys went into the game from the start like veterans, and scored in every inning except one by their hard hitting. The Waterloo boys played a very pretty game in the field, and they took their unexpected defeat like true sports, although they claimed to have got the worst of some of the decisions on balls and strikes. The score was as follows:

Waterloo 0 1 0 0 0—1
 Wellesley 2 0 2 4 4—12

The Wellesley team was: Wm Dingwall, c; John Mayer, p; Walter Mayer, 1b; Ed Klein, 2b; Ed Wittig, 3b; Wm Barth, rf; John Kaufman, lf; O. Lehmann, cf; George Kube, 1b; T. Spira, Wm. Faulstich, 1b; Kerr, 1b.

NOTES.

Will Dingwall is in the game as good as ever; he doesn't even need practice. Lehmann always has steam enough behind a two-base hit to turn it into a three bagger. The visitors did many hits of pretty fielding, but they were weak on Johnny's swift curves. The large attendance was proof that baseball could be made very popular here.

FOOT BALL

About an hour after the baseball game two foot ball teams paraded the streets, headed by the brass band and marched to the grounds where a very pretty, though one-sided match was played. Wellesley vs. Waterloo. Early in the game it was seen that the visitors had no show against the strong village team, whose forwards played a really strong combination, carrying the ball right into the Waterloo goal. But, with the exception of Klein, they all showed a marked weakness in shooting or the score would have been more than trebled. The visitors pluckily to their hopeless task throughout the trying game, their two full-backs and goal keepers doing stonewall work. The game ended in a score of 6 goals to 0 in favor of the home team.

ERBVILLE VS. WELLESLEY

The Erbville players arrived in town about 4 o'clock and witnessed the finish of the afternoon game. After supper they faced the Wellesley team and were "moved down like grass" in the presence of nearly three hundred spectators. Immediately after face-off the local forwards' pretty combination began to work and the ball travelled up to Harry Krummer, a former Nithburg boy, who was in goal for Erbville, who was doing all any goal-keeper could do to stop the mud rush, and who only let in two goals out of the two dozen shots rained on him during the first half. In the second half 6 more goals were scored by the locals who were shooting slightly better than in the afternoon game, although still missing many shots. Referee Kerr was very strict and refused to allow two or three goals which the locals got in from off-sides or fouls during the game. The game ended in a score of 7 goals to 0 in favor of Wellesley. The best of feeling prevailed throughout all the sports during the day, and the visitors were loud in their praises of the way they were treated here.

TENNIS

Both courts were constantly occupied during most of the day and some fine sport was enjoyed. A large number witnessed a fine exhibition in the afternoon between Messrs. Kerr and Albert Romer vs. Mr. Ed Reiner and Dr. Glaister, in which the former was successful, after a hard struggle, by the score of 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Numerous fishing parties enjoyed the day on the trout preserves and on the river, while a large number had a great time in the morning trying to catch the large carp in the month of the creek near Zehr's foundry.

At dusk the village was alive with fireworks, toy balloon ascensions, and it was felt that the day was nearly as lively as if a regular celebration had been held.

DOERING'S CORNERS

July 26th, 1904.
 Misses Barbara and Julia Knapp, and Mr. Ed Pfanner, of Berlin were guests at Mrs. Pfanner's, in Phillipsburg, on Sunday.

Mr. Edward Holdman, Phillipsburg, accidentally shot himself on Monday while out with a rifle after musk rats. The bullet entered at the thumb and came out at the elbow, making a bad gash. Dr. Marty, of New Hamburg, dressed the wound and Mr. Holdman is doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. George Buchheit had a successful raising on Tuesday, raising the straw shed in the evening after which the young people enjoyed a social hop.

FIRE AT CONESTOGO

Early on the morning of the 19th the immense flour mill at Conestogo owned by Meino Snider, were completely destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $12,000 covered by insurance amounting to between $3,000 and $4,000. The cause of the fire is unknown. It was first seen by Mr. Snider himself when he got up at 5:15 a. m. There was a man looking high from the eastern portion of the mill. As there is no fire appliance in the village nothing could be done to quell the flames and Mr. Snider saw at once that the whole plant was doomed. Wednesday night when the last man left the mill at 8 o'clock everything was in good shape and as the mill was run by water power, there having been no fire in the boiler for the past two months, the origin of the fire is a complete mystery. The frame part of the building which was four stories high and 55 by 35 feet in size, had seen a landmark of the village for sixty years and the immense brick warehouse had also stood for many years, having formerly been a general store. The machinery of the mill was comparatively new and was all ruined. Of the insurance the Economical carried $1,500 on the machinery and policies were also carried in the Waterloo, Perth and Gore Mutual Companies and the Canadian Millers' Insurance Company. The Waterloo Mutual declined to say how much was carried in that company.

Messrs. Clime, of the Listowel Standard, and McBeth, of the Milverton Sun have gone down in their stockings for the price of a trip to the World's Fair, and are now at St. Louis enjoying themselves. It must pay to be snowed in all winter.

A Remarkable Grain Exhibit.
 Canada's wonderful exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture at the World's Fair is a revelation, says a St. Louis correspondent, to anyone who may have had an idea that the great north country was one of cold and ice-land. No sections in Uncle Sam's galaxy of States display fairer specimens of the result of the husbandman's industry and no land shows a greater variety of products than does the great country that adjoins the United States on the north. A replica of a historical structure forms the centrepiece of this notable exhibit. One of the handsomest of the public buildings in the Dominion is the Library of Parliament at Ottawa. The dome of this building, reproduced on a small scale, is one of the most commanding objects in the big building. It is an octagon, thirty-four feet across and its top extends sixty feet upward and brushes the rafters of the Agricultural Palace. Its frame is of pine, and the surface that shows is covered with glowing red and blue. Artistically fastened to this background are the grain and grasses of Canada, more than 3,000 specimens being shown in charming array. Great buttresses are built up of mill-let a forage plant, bromus grass, a fodder crop grown extensively in western Canada and which appears shortly after the snow leaves the ground, wheat, oats, clover, blue grass and hundreds of other choice specimens. Corn, used as much in the establishment of the exhibits of the States, finds no place in this display. The eight rooms in the octagon afford a conspicuous place for oil paintings, featuring the live stock industry of the great country to the north. The pictures are works of art and their great size makes the scenes life-like. The windows under the lower arches are filled with bottles of threshed grain.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Stratford is antipating for a mid-week half holiday. It was tried last year in that city with great success.

The agitation for church union in Canada is becoming widespread. The Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches are involved. At almost every representative meeting held by any of these denominations this matter is discussed and resolutions unanimously favoring it passed. The scheme is a broad one and involves the delicate task of fitting a new set of church rules which could be adopted by these great christian bodies. Then there is the great ministerial consideration involved in the question of retaining the number of congregation to be fully one-half. Not that the united church would require less ministers, for the field is large and the new organization would require even more men; but the ministers have always been a source of moral strength in the locality where they are stationed, and it is a question as to whether there would be safety in withdrawing so many of them a world of necessity follow church union. The whole problem is profoundly serious one and calls for the best judgment of the dignitaries and laity of the three churches in its solution.

The attempt to quash the Berlin by-law granting $10,000 to the "Wellesley extension" electric railway has been abandoned. The by-law therefore stands good as the time has elapsed for instituting further quashing proceedings. The proposed railway now has bonuses to the amount of $29,000, or over $2,500 per mile, to build to Wellesley village, a distance said to be about eleven miles over a route nearly as easy to build as a prairie. There is also a bonus of $5,000 to assist the road in its course west of this village. The ratepayers have certainly dealt generously with the scheme and are now looking anxiously for the turn of events.

Last week the ratepayers of Galt carried a by-law to build a new and more extensive college. The boys of the school took advantage of the occasion to hold an impromptu parade attended with all the modern college tin-horn music, etc. On their way they met the president of their school board and the president of the school to make a speech. After the march the boys returned to school, where they were sobered by information from the Principal that they were all to be punished for absenting themselves from school without permission. As there were about 100 boys in the line it is likely the authorities secured one of Bob Burlette's spanking machines for the occasion.

The raising of the commercial horse is booming each year a more prominent part of the farmer's business in this part of Ontario. Those who thought the coming of electricity would destroy the horse market find themselves agreeably mistaken for never was there a steadier demand than at present, particularly for registered stock. Clyde horses are the most sought for although good representatives of the road class and lighter breeds bring a ready sale at fancy prices. Some of the finest specimens and most costly sires and dams, especially in the famous Scottish Clydesdale breed are in use in this section this spring which have over been imported to Canada and in a few years this will become a garden spot for buyers of high class horse flesh.

YANKEES FEAR EXODUS.

Try to Stop It—Government of Washington Appeals to Agents to Keep Farmers in the States.

The tremendous tide that has been flowing so steadily into Canada from the States, carrying so many of the most substantial people from the best farming districts of the Republic, has finally aroused the serious concern of the Washington Government. A number of shrewd agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor, from the Federal Capital, are in the west sizing up the situation. These men are supplied with unlimited resources for securing the information the Departments want. Their mission is to quietly ascertain concrete facts, names of the Yankee immigrants, exact location whence they came, why they left the States, extent of individual resources, and, in fact, any other details that will contribute to a tabulated statement touching the case. These accounts are to be forwarded to Washington with the result of observations of the agents. Reductions are to be made and the most intelligent remedies applied in different sections to arrest the movement toward Canada, or at least to divert the migration to farming lands through which the stream flows en route to Canada. The thoroughness with which the subject is being investigated illustrates the attitude of the Washington Government. Evidently, if the current can be stemmed the authorities on the other side propose to do it. These special agents are quiet gentlemen who have their problem well in hand. They do not arouse any hostility among the Canadians because of their frankness. They are not spies. They admit readily the drawing qualities in the N.W.T. They neither say nor do anything calculated to induce settlers to return to the farms they have abandoned in the States. They insist that is not their mission. They merely desire to do what they can to see that no more immigrants reach Canada from similar sections.

Too Big to Be Tolerated.

Here is rather a remarkable statement, since it comes directly from Lloyd J. Harrison, one of these special agents of the Commerce and Labor Department. He came to Winnipeg with the first immigrants of the season from Northern Canada. He had been back and forth over the line almost weekly since. Each time he comes in over a new route and with immigrants from other states. Therefore, his facilities for gauging the situation are excellent. His information is first hand in every case. He has spent much time around the C.P.R. station and around the boarding-houses where these American immigrants stay for a day or two preparatory to starting to different sections of the west.

Mr. Harrison said: "We find no fault with Canadians for advertising their country and luring the farms with settlers from the States. Their methods are fair and their example is one of the most extraordinary exhibitions of energy of the century. But the movement has assumed altogether too large proportions to be calmly tolerated. If every available farm in the Western States was occupied; if this tide was merely an overflow of surplus population there would be nothing in the situation to warrant serious concern."

"For instance, here are some data we have collected, showing the states that have contributed to this Canadian prosperity and the number from each. Take the Dakotas—where there are plenty of free homesteads to be had—good farm land as there is in Canada. Last year the Dakotas lost to Canada 4,000 heads of families, or at least this number entered homesteads in Canada, coming from those two states. Next came Minnesota, whose heads of families, to the number of 3,887, entered homesteads in Canada last year. Our records show that last year every state and territory of the forty-four in the union, except Alabama, Mississippi and Delaware, lost citizens to Canada.

Nearly Twelve Thousand Families.
"Here is the total for last year of citizens of the United States who entered homesteads in Canada—the amazing total of 11,841 heads of families. Figured on the natural percentage of five persons to a family this represents a citizenship of 57,205 transferred between the two countries in one year. This does not consider the vast number who came into Canada and purchased farms or rented. It is estimated that an even 150,000 citizens of the United States passed into Canada last year to make their permanent home on this side."

The great gateways through which these American settlers pass into Canada are St. Vincent, Necho, Wahalla, Souris in North Dakota, and Sweet Grass, Montana, all on the Great Northern Railway. North Dakota on the Canadian Northern Pacific, and North Portal, N.D., on the Soo line. Through these towns they enter Manitoba, Assinibois and Alberta. The residents of these towns are adopting strenuous methods of advertising to catch an occasional settler. They may not be the frigid, cold-blooded illustrators who witness the passage of this vast stream into Canada, ignoring the final appeals of those who desire to show them something "just as good."

Wailego Appeals to Stay.

At Neche, for instance, a huge sign board painted white with black letters 600 feet long notifies the passengers of the Great Northern trains that they should "Stay in God's country and buy lands of the Lawton Land Co." The big sign is close to the depot. The arrival of each train is the signal for an outbreak of merriment when the transients catch sight of the unique appeal. Then the new settlers are shot across the line into the Dominion and, as the enterprising land company's sign vanishes in the distance, the newcomers arrive at Gretna where flies the flag of the Empire that is henceforth to shelter them. At St. Vincent the sign boards don't touch on "God's country," but substitute in some instances this alluring bid for republican sentiment and settlers: "Stay here and be citizens of a republic, don't be the subjects of a King; Collins and Co. sell the best farms."

Meeting of the Nations.
The striking contrast between these stalwart men of the West with their substantial appearance and ready way of accepting situations, and the hordes of European immigrants, as the two streams collide and mix in a furious human maelstrom at the Winnipeg depot is so pronounced as to provoke instant comment. The Western man with his family sits through the mob of wildly gesticulating Galicians, Slavs, Hung and Russian Jews, out into Manitoba, and the hour of his train arrived he has been assimilated and disappears. Back in the Union Depot it is pandemonium—a picture of despair and struggling humanity, to say nothing of the confusion of tongues.

It is a half savage host, timid, illy clad, foul smelling, surrounded by personal effects of equally unappealing order—a shocking array of ignorance and squalor. A dozen nationalities crowd together, each unable to understand a word uttered by the other, but shrinking closer, as if inviting the company that misery is said to love. You can't understand what they say, but their handshake, their shoulder shrugs and their frantic gesticulations are pitiful substitutes.

The tall old chap's hands and he couldn't speak a word," significantly observed one of the interpreters as he turned away a gaunt specimen of the Westerner who was twisting his hands writhing in every muscle of his body and jumping up and down in a frenzy of despair at his utter helplessness.

The Difference.
It is this difference in the two classes of new settlers that makes the big, intelligent farmer boys of Ontario and the western Yankee with his half-dozen children, his carload of stock and agricultural implements and his thorough grasp of the situation, so welcome in Canada's Northwest. The one is the finest material for Empire building the world has ever produced, the other the raw material that will require careful nursing and training to assimilate. Here is the problem that strikes the average observer of a practical turn. There is room for all of them, but the two classes of immigrants pouring into Winnipeg are as widely apart as the poles in their notions of government, language, religion, free thought and action and hope of the future.

And yet the reception of each is cordial—almost enthusiastic. The newcomer is made to feel at home. The Winnipeg citizen turns from his course and walks blocks to indicate the way to an anxious enquiry. The stranger is recognized and the recognition is of that character peculiarly typical of the country—it is the broad of the West—O. C. Porter, in Toronto Word.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN FLEISCHHAUER, SR. At Gadsbill, on Saturday, May 21st, 1904, Anna Marie Jungblut, relict of the late John Fleischhauer, aged 81 years, two months and one day.

Mrs. Fleischhauer was one of the very oldest settlers of this section. She arrived from Germany with the family in 1837, when she was fourteen years old, settling near Berlin in her early maidenhood she was married to Mr. John Fleischhauer, who died at Gadsbill in 1891. The marriage occurred in the then hamlet of Waterloo, and the young couple lived west of that town, on the St. Agatha road for some years, when they moved to a farm in North Easthope, west of Hampstead. Here they lived for a long term of years, the children receiving their education in the Hampstead school. About fifteen years ago they retired to Gadsbill. She was the mother of twelve children, ten boys and two girls: Christ J., in Reed City, Mich.; John J., Wellsville; George, Tavistock; Otto, Wellsville; Adam, in Bright; Henry, in Zurich; Louis, Wellsville; Fred, present address unknown; Jacob, Gadsbill; Mrs. John E. Ratz, Gadsbill; Andrew, died in childhood, and Mrs. Con. Faulhafer, of Gadsbill. Besides she leaves as descendants 57 grand children and 14 great grand children, nearly all of whom were present at the funeral. The remains were interred at Gadsbill on May 24th, the six eldest sons acting as pall bearers, Louis being substituted for Otto whose health did not permit him to act. Deceased was an earnest, warm-hearted woman and the upright character of her large family is a living testimonial of her worth.

HOW BONES GROW.

The Evolution From Cartilage Is Slow and Complicated.

Bone, in its earliest stages called temporary cartilage, has fibrous tissue as its primary foundation. The chief uses of bones are to protect delicate organs and to form a framework for the body, by which, in combination with the muscles, the body is moved.

As growth advances stronger mechanical support becomes necessary and as scaffolding is gradually removed in the course of building, so each part of the soft cartilage is cleared away piece by piece, at first by the absorption of its central part and then by the deposit of a few particles of bony matter to take its place.

The arteries next enlarge and deposit granules of calcareous phosphate, which are laid down, particle by particle, in regular lines, so as to form continuous fibers, which cross connect and unite from different centers and by definite laws.

Each distinct bone is thus formed from ossific or bone forming centers, which unite by a natural affinity. Dr. Bogert has compared this process to the method by which a sculptor models first in plastic material the form to be expressed in marble.

SEEING DOUBLE.

How Interesting Lignor Acts Upon The Eye Muscles.

Among the earliest consequences of strong drink must be placed the lack of proper coordination of all muscular movements. This applies not only to the limbs, as is seen in the staggering gait, but to all parts in a healthy body which act in sympathy.

Certain parts of the retina of both eyes possess what are called sympathetic areas, and though each eye has its own innervation, yet by continued experience these are transmitted to the brain as only one object. Should the muscles by any cause be unequal to regulate the associated movements the images of external objects are thrown on unsympathetic areas of the retina, and the result is that they appear double.

This may easily be tried in the healthy eye by squeezing one eyeball slightly, when the images will fall on areas not usually sympathetic, and two objects appear instead of one, or if a candle is held at about two feet away, and a candle be placed farther off still, then the eyes, looking closely at the finger, will perceive two images of the distant candle.

THE TRADE WINDS.

How They Originate and the Reason of Their Constancy.

The constancy of trade winds is due to the permanence of the conditions which rule them. As the heated air at the equator ascends, surface winds set in from north and south and, sailing, ascend in their turn and flow off in opposite directions.

As the velocity of the earth's revolutions from east to west is much greater at the equator than at the poles wind blowing along its surface to the equator, is constantly arriving at places which have a higher velocity than itself; hence it is retarded and must lag behind, and under the influence of two opposing forces it is compelled to take an intermediate direction, so that what was originally a north wind is deflected and flows southwest, while what started as a south wind becomes north-west.

From the great service they have rendered to navigation these reliable winds are called trade winds. It is in a wide ocean, such as the Pacific, that they have their full scope.

Crickets In Japan.

There is a large green cricket, larger than our native variety, of which the children in Japan are fond. It is sold in cunning little bamboo cages in booths on the streets and is loved for its cheery chirp. Several varieties of tree crickets are pure white, coming at different times of the year. Some have a note so loud and insistent that to have two or three playing their riddles in a garden at once makes a noise almost deafening, while a species that comes late in the fall has an exquisite note like the quick ringing of a small bell.

How Anthracite Coal Was Formed.

Geologists are of the opinion that bituminous and anthracite coals were formed during the same period and under like conditions. Originally they were all bituminous, but during the violent contortions and upheavals of the earth's crust at the close of the carboniferous age the bituminous coals involved in that disturbance were changed by heat and pressure and the consequent expulsion of volatile matter from bituminous to anthracite.

A Clever Beggar.

Mme. de Maltenon once asked Lord Blair why it was that the affairs of government were so badly managed in France under a king and so well managed in England under a queen? "For that very reason," replied the English ambassador, "for when a man reigns the women rule him, and when a woman reigns she is ruled by men."

Inspiring Canadian Ideal.

At the recent Ontario Educational Association meeting in Toronto Dr. McLellan of Hamilton, closed a speech with the following magnificent and inspiring ideal.

That man, I think, has had a liberal education who has been so trained, that his youth is the ready servant of the will, whose intellect is a clear, cold logic engine with all the parts of equal strength and in its smooth working order, ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work and to spin the gossamer as well as forge the anchor of the mind, one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions have been trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or art; to hate all violence, and to respect others as himself.

Hanging Gardens.

The hanging gardens of Babylon were terraced on columns. The gardens were 400 feet square and over 400 feet high. The ascent from terrace to terrace was by flights of marble steps, and on the highest was a large reservoir.

Camels In British Columbia.

His friends in Ontario will be glad to hear of the recovery of Senator Reid, of British Columbia, who was a patient in St. Luke's Hospital, Ottawa, for some weeks. Senator Reid is one of the pioneers of the Cariboo District, and has many interesting features of his early experiences in the Great West. One of his stories has to do with the survey of the telegraph line which it was proposed to build across Siberia, the Behring Straits, Alaska, and down British Columbia before the Atlantic cable became an accomplished fact. It was believed by the projectors of the Siberian-American line that a submarine cable would prove unworkable over such a vast distance as that between Valentin and Newfoundland. Consequently survey parties were sent out by the Americans interested in the rival line. Siberia was visited by one party, and another explored the British Columbia mines. The problem of transporting supplies in the latter district was a difficult one, as horses were found unsatisfactory. It was not until a number of Siberian camels were imported that the surveyors could go any distance from civilization. The Siberian camel is a capital beast of burden, and the twenty-odd brought to British Columbia were very satisfactory. When the surveys on the two continents were almost completed word came that the newly laid Atlantic cable was working excellently. The surveying parties were recalled, and the plan to rival Cyrus Field's cable was abandoned. The camels being camels is capital, both of burden, and for years, Senator Reid says, were a nuisance in Cariboo. The work of transporting supplies into the interior was done by pack-trains of horses, and many a valuable marmoset or pack horse, coming suddenly on one of the straying camels as it was going along a mountain road, bolted over the precipice. The camels killed the horses with such deadly fear that they became absolutely unmanageable. Consequently, the owners of pack-trains ordered their packers to shoot the camels whenever encountered. It was several years, however, before the last of the Asiatic visitors was killed.

A Woman of the Day.

Mrs. Amelia Barr, who was born seventy-three years ago, is one of the comparatively few Englishwomen who have set the down to literary careers in America. She was only nineteen when she married a Glasgow merchant, and she was left a widow, with three daughters, in Texas, Tex., when she was thirty-five, living in New York, she got work on Mr. Henry Ward Beecher's paper and a variety of magazines. But what is remarkable in her career as a novelist is this—that it did not begin until she was fifty. Since then the output of works of fiction has been continuous, and, in library catalogues, she has now four dozen to her name.
